

Wyoming Voter Access Survey

Sources and expanded explanation for the public survey page

Purpose of this PDF

This PDF supports the Wyoming Voter Access Survey. The survey itself should stay short for Facebook sharing and mobile use. This document gives voters more background, identifies the sources used, and explains why each question appears in the survey.

The survey is designed to measure public input, not persuade. It asks whether Wyoming voters support easier participation for eligible citizens while keeping verification and local election administration in place.

Core principle: keep elections secure, verify eligibility, and make voting as easy as possible for every eligible Wyoming citizen.

Short survey wording

1. Should Wyoming create a statewide voting holiday for election days so eligible voters have time to vote?

Choices: Yes, for both Primary Election Day and General Election Day; Yes, for Primary Election Day only; Yes, for General Election Day only; Keep the current voting rules; Not sure.

2. Should eligible Wyoming residents be automatically registered to vote when getting or renewing a Wyoming driver's license or state ID?

Choices: Yes; No; Not sure.

3. Should Wyoming protect same-day voter registration, so eligible citizens can register and vote on Election Day?

Choices: Yes; No; Not sure.

4. What would make voting access work better in Wyoming while keeping elections secure?

Field type: Optional written response.

What the survey asks

1. Time to vote. The first question asks whether Wyoming should create a statewide voting holiday for the primary election, the general election, or both. Wyoming law already gives some workers one hour of paid voting leave, with limits. The survey asks whether voters want a broader rule, such as a voting holiday or expanded time access.

2. Easier registration at driver's license or state ID renewal. The second question asks whether eligible Wyoming residents should be automatically registered when getting or renewing a Wyoming driver's license or state ID. Automatic voter registration in other states usually sends agency information to election officials, who create or update records for eligible people.

3. Same-day voter registration. The third question asks whether Wyoming should protect same-day registration. The Wyoming Secretary of State 2026 election calendar says voters may register and vote at polling places on Primary Election Day and General Election Day.

4. Open comment. The final question gives voters room to explain concerns, improvements, or safeguards in plain language. This keeps the survey short while still allowing useful feedback.

What this survey is not claiming

This survey does not claim Wyoming elections are broken. It does not ask to remove eligibility rules. It does not ask to replace county clerks, election judges, or the existing verification process. It asks whether access can improve while eligibility checks remain in place.

The survey can show public input from participants. It cannot prove what every Wyoming voter believes. Results should be reported with exact wording, collection dates, number of responses, verification method, and a short limitations note.

Background facts used in the survey

Topic	Source-based fact
2026 election dates	The Wyoming Secretary of State 2026 calendar lists the Primary Election on August 18, 2026 and the General Election on November 3, 2026. [1]
Same-day registration	The same 2026 calendar says voters may register and vote at polling places on both Primary Election Day and General Election Day. [1]
Voting leave	Wyoming Statute 22-2-111 provides one hour away from work to vote, with pay protection when the eligible voter casts a legal vote. The statute does not apply when an employee has three or more consecutive nonworking hours while polls are open. [2]
Registration qualifications	Wyoming Secretary of State guidance lists registration qualifications including age, U.S. citizenship, Wyoming residency, and identification requirements. [3]
Automatic voter registration	NCSL describes automatic voter registration as a process in which eligible individuals are registered when interacting with agencies such as a department of motor vehicles. NCSL also explains that the process is not compulsory because opt-out methods exist in many systems. [4]

Expanded public explanation

Voting access is about practical barriers. Work schedules, travel distance, registration paperwork, identification requirements, and timing rules can make participation easier or harder. Election security is about verifying eligibility, maintaining accurate voter rolls, protecting the ballot, and counting only lawful votes. A voter access policy can address both goals at the same time.

The voting holiday question measures whether voters want more guaranteed time to cast a ballot. Wyoming already recognizes that workers may need time to vote through the current one-hour voting leave statute. The survey asks whether that idea should expand to a statewide holiday for the primary and general election, or stay as-is.

The automatic registration question measures whether voters want eligible residents connected to the voter rolls through driver's license or state ID transactions. This would require careful design: eligibility screening, citizenship and residency checks, duplicate checks, voter privacy protections, and clear correction procedures.

The same-day registration question measures whether voters want to keep the current ability to register and vote on Election Day. The current Wyoming calendar recognizes this practice. A future public policy page can explain that same-day registration should remain paired with proof requirements and clerk verification.

The open comment question asks voters to name safeguards or improvements. Useful answers may mention clerk verification, paper records, voter ID, public reporting, voter privacy, access for workers, rural travel distance, or ways to keep registration simple and accurate.

Neutral reporting plan

- Publish exact question wording and all answer choices.
- Publish total responses and collection dates.
- Label verified Wyoming voter results separately from unverified responses when verification is used.
- Publish a short limitations note explaining that a voluntary survey measures participant input, not every voter in Wyoming.
- Publish source links separate from the questions so voters can review background information without turning the survey into an argument.
